A MODEL WHITE MAGISTRATE ile Commits a Man to Jail because he does not give Bond to Pay Money which he does not Owe.

THE NEWS, of Monday, gave an account of a model negro magistrate who committed a man to jail because he did not take his hat off, and now has to record the doings of a white magistrate who, combining both ignorance and "pure cussedness," has done an act which shows him to be a fit associate of his brother magistrate. is now a member of the Radical party, on Tuesday last committed a citizen to the jail of this city because he would not give bond to pay the sum of fifty dollars which he did not owe. CAUSE OF THE ARREST.

In 1867 a man named Nelson planted some cotton on the plantation of Mr. D. Ferguson, Mr. Fitzer if he would cultivate it and give im oue-third of the net proceeds from the sale of it. Mr. Fitzer and three others, includ-ing Samuel Richardson, colored, consented to take charge of the cotton. Subsequenty two of the men withdrew from the agreement, leaving Mr. Filzer and Richardson in charge of the cotton field. These two agreed that they should cultivate the quiton, sell it, give Nelson his one-thir1, and equitify divide the balance left, after paying Mr. Fitzer the money expended in the cultivation.

The cotton, one bale, was sold in Charlesto by Mesers. W. C. Bee & Co. in 1868 for $109. The expenses for cultivation, bagging, &c., was $92. The one-third, $36 33, was paid to Nelson, which of course left nothing to be divided, but put Mr. Fitzer about $20 out of pocket. At the time, Richardson, although the matter was fully explained to him, asserted that money was due him from the sale, and that he would have it out of Mr. Fitzer.

BEFORE THE MAGISTRATE.

On the 7th of this month, about eighteen months after the cotton was sold, Richardson had a warrant issued by Magistrate H. W. Ristig, of St. John's Berkeley, living about thirty miles from the city, for the arrest of Mr. Fitzer upon the charge of "swindel." Mr. Fitzer, with his witnesses, appeared before the magis-trate, who, after a brief investigation, told Mr. Fitzer that if he did not give bond to pay the sum of fifty dollars to Michardson, he would have to go to jail. Fitzer refused to give the bond required, but offered to give ascurity to appear for trial before a higher court. The magistrate refused to allow him to do so, say-ing that it would cost the State too much for. the case to go to any other court. He then wrote a commitment, and the constable brought Mr. Fitzer to the jail here.

OUT UPON A WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS. Mr. Fitzer secured the services of G. W. Dingle, Esq., who, on yesterday, had his client brought before Magistrates Rivers and Schroder, upon a writ of habens corpus. One of the magistrates was in favor of releasing the prisoner upon his own recognizance, but the other dissented, and it was at last decided that he should give one bundred dollars security to appear before the State Court for trial. He gave the security and was discharged.

IGNOBANCE AND "PURE CUSSEDNESS." The magistrate had no right whatever to take cognizance of the matter, as the statute of limitations provide that a man cannot be arraigned for an offence of the character alleged six months after the alleged officence was ommitted. As the fellow Bichardson avoided all of the magistrates in the immediate vicinity, and went a long distance to Ristig, it is to be presumed that he knew the character of the man, and felt convinced that he would aid him in carrying out his vile ends.

The Inspection of Timber.

TO THE RDITOR OF THE NEWS.

I beg leave to notice briefly certain errors into which your correspondent "Justitia" has fallen regarding the application of the State law to the recent city "ordinance to create the office of Insector. General of Timber and Limber," &c. Your correspondent asks, "Can the City Council create such office?" This question he answers in the negative, relying upon the following clause in the act of December 20, 1853 (not 1854, as stated by bim:) "The City Council of Charlesten shall elect annually one or more inspectors and surveyors of timber." Now, if the inspector-general is a surveyor of timber, as his oath of office and the duties assigned him by the ordinance show that he is, then the City Council has not exceeded its authority in electing such an officer, for the act says it "shall elect one or more." The daties of the office, and not the title of the officer, the inspector-general is not a "surveyor of timber," but if his functions are purely ministerial or clerical, then the act in question dues not touch his office, for that act relates solely to "inspectors and surveyors of timber."

Your correspondent further alleges that the ordinance violates also the "act of 1856, reducing the fees of the measurers to eight cents per thousant feet." In this he is sagain in error, as will readily be seen by comparing the following from the act with the clause in the ordinance fixing the tee is relation to timber. The sact says: Section 1, "Tue public measurers of ranging timber eight centils per thousand for every thousand feet measured." "The ordinance timber in the ordinance disting the consequence." "The ordinance in the output of the sact of ranging timber eight cents per thousand for every thousand feet measured." "The ordinance disting the fee of measured." "The ordinance disting the fee of measured." "The ordinance disting the fee of measured." "The ordinance is not a measured." "The ordinance of the measured." "The ordinance of the measured of "The ordinance of the measured." "The or TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS.

ranging timber eight coills per thousand for every thousand feet messured." The ordi-nance says: Section 12, "The feet for the sur-vey and inspection of all timber shall be thurrey and inspection of all timber shall be threvey and inspection of all timber shall be threvey conts per thousand feet, twenty-two cents of that amount to be paid to the surveyor, or acting surveyor, and the remaining eight cents to be paid to the unspector-general." It is clear that the act prescribes the fee for measuring only, while the ordinance gives the fees for measuring and inspecting. To measure is simply to determine the trimber of feet, beard measure; while to inspect according to the measure; while to inspect, according to the ordinance, is to determine the quality of the timber, to classify and mark it, and to return to the owner a survey-bill setting forth such classification.

I agree with your correspondent in the opinion that the new ordinance is, in some respects, unjust to the tumber-entiers; but the grievances does not lie either in the title of the 'office of inspector general," or in the fees charged for isspection and measurement, but in the mode of measurement and in the classification. It is this: Section's provides that 'mill timber must be measured at one third from the top,' matead of its being measured in the middle as herestore. In a site of timber sixty (60) feet in length, twenty-four (24) inches at the but, 'and eventy-one (21) nechas at the top, thus allowing only one (1), inch taper, to serry twenty funning feet, the timber-outer or, seller will, lose twenty-seven feet, board measures, by having the steet measured at one-third from the top instead of at the mid its, while the buyer gains by the vector of sife hatters. the stok measured at one third from the top instead of at the mid lie, while the buyer game by the excess of size between the point of measurement and the butt of the slick. In other words, the, buyer gates by two-thirds of the length towards the butt, and loses nothing in the remaining third towards the tob, while the seller loses in the entire length. Again, decided the remaining third towards the tob, while the seller loses in the entire length. Again Section 4 provides that all imber havine "ting, wind or beart stakes," shall be classed as "defective timber, to be paid for at one-third the price agreed upon between the buyer and seller for merchanishic timber."

Now these defects exist in a greater or less degree in all timber, and therefore should not determine the resultation. Again, Section 8 provides that all "habping imber must be clear of wane," young timber must be clear of wane," young timber must be clear of wane," young timber must be clear of wane." The clause above quoted, fixing the rate at which the buyer shall they have seller, is clearly improper, for the buyer and seller have an absolute and indefeasible right to agree upon any price to suit themselves. right to agree upon any price to suit them selves.

With the exception of the deficite that I have cleed, and which will, I am assured, be remedied by the Oty Conneil at an early day, the ordinance gives general sat affection to the timber outters; while the timber dealers generally approve of it. The feee for measuring, &c., timber and importance, in the aggregate, three sents lower per thousand, feet of timber and tumber than they have ever been.

The Adderman who tramed and proposed the ordinance in the former Council, stated, at the time of its passage, that he had either that it to the aggregate. It is the had entered the time of the provided many large tumber dealers, and they all approved it. This systement the timber-cutters will not doubt for an instant.

Inspector-General Timber and Lumber.
